

CALL FOR PAPERS

for the

Journal of the West

Dear Colleagues,

Journal of the West, which for nearly 50 years has been bridging the gap between the academic history of the West and popular interest in the region, is always looking for interesting new work on the West. There are a number of different ways you can become involved with the Journal.

Each issue of the Journal is highlighted by a series of articles on a theme central to the history and life of the region. Please contact us if you have an idea for a future theme issue of the Journal, the knowledge and desire to edit the issue, and know of contributors who would like to write articles for such an issue.

The “Western Forum” section opens each issue with a shorter, more opinion-based, thought-provoking article. Please contact us if you have an idea or an article that may be provocative while remaining academically rigorous for this section.

Aside from the theme section articles, the Journal publishes a number of non-thematic articles in each issue’s “About the West” section. Please contact us if have an article of approximately 5,000 words that you would like to submit for consideration.

The Journal publishes approximately 80 book reviews in each issue, and we are always looking for good reviewers to add to our list. Please contact us if you are interested in adding to the historical knowledge about the West in this way.

If any of these four avenues interests you, please forward a copy of your c.v. with your message to me at journalofthewest@abc-clio.com.

Thank you,
Steve
